WHERE INMA FITS

The global news media industry today consists of 6,500+ daily newspapers, 200,000 magazines, and countless digital news outlets. Amid that universe of associations, INMA is the only global community dedicated to crowdsourcing ideas to grow the audience and revenue of news media companies.

They use nearly 500 associations to lobby governments, support press freedom, promote their brands to advertising communities, and coordinate group purchases.

INMA has been a big part of our transformation journey. We have the opportunity to share learning with others and have amazing exposure to industry peers who are getting it right with business innovation, new revenue models, newsroom transformation, and product development.”

Media Start-up membership application

INMA offers the equivalent of a corporate membership to news media-related companies less than 5 years of age and fewer than 20 employees. The qualifying start-up has not yet made a profit or generates less than US$3 million per year in revenue. The company works toward innovation, development, and commercialisation of new products, processes, or services driven by and for the news media industry. Up to 20 employees may be included with the membership.
